

FEMA Is Hiring

Release Date: May 8, 2023

Central, Miss. — FEMA, in partnership with the State of Mississippi, is hiring state residents to assist with recovery efforts from the March 24-25 tornadoes and severe storms.

The agency has more than a dozen openings for a variety of short-term, full-time jobs based at FEMA's temporary offices in the surrounding areas. The temporary positions are for 120 days, but may be extended based on the needs of the disaster.

Hiring locally allows Mississippi residents to help their neighbors with their recovery. Hiring locally is part of FEMA's commitment to the community. And hiring locally helps build America's disaster recovery workforce, because many FEMA employees started as local hires after major disasters in their states.
