

(Fact Sheet) West Virginians: FEMA Determination Letter Not Always the Final Word

Release Date: October 3, 2017

If you're a survivor of the West Virginia severe storms, flooding, landslides and mudslides of July 28-29, 2017 and get a letter that says your application for federal assistance is "ineligible" or "incomplete," be sure to read the letter all the way through to the end to find out why.

All applicants have the right to appeal and many times a quick fix will change the determination.

Reasons for receiving an ineligible determination:

- Most common reason for ineligibility: you didn't provide FEMA with a copy of a letter verifying your insurance coverage and detailing your settlement. FEMA needs this to process your grant application.
 - o Your insurance company will be able to provide you the documents.
- Other reasons for ineligibility may include:
 - o You did not sign the required documents.
 - o You did not prove occupancy or ownership.
 - o Your identity may not have been verified.
 - o The damage is not to your primary residence, but to a secondary home or a rental property.
 - o Another member of your household may have applied and received assistance.
 - o Your disaster-related losses could not be verified.

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) is the federal government's primary source of money for the long-term rebuilding of disaster-damaged private property. SBA helps homeowners, renters, businesses of all sizes, and private non-profit organizations fund repairs or rebuilding efforts and cover the cost of replacing lost or disaster-damaged personal property. These disaster loans cover losses not fully compensated by insurance or other recoveries and do not duplicate benefits of other agencies or organizations. For more information,
