

FEMA Is Hiring in Vermont

Release Date: August 5, 2023

WILLISTON, Vt. — FEMA, in partnership with the State of Vermont, is hiring state residents to assist with recovery from the July floods, severe storms, landslides and mudslides.

The agency has several openings for short-term, full-time jobs based at FEMA's temporary offices in the surrounding areas. The temporary positions are for 120 days but may be extended based on the needs of the disaster. More positions may open if needed.

Working with FEMA will allow Vermont residents to help their neighbors with their recovery. Hiring locally is part of FEMA's commitment to the community. And hiring locally helps build America's disaster recovery workforce: many current FEMA employees started as local hires after major disasters in their states.
