

Affordable Housing Listening Session for Developers, Nonprofits

Release Date: December 7, 2024

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and FEMA will conduct a listening session to engage with local non-profit and for-profit housing developers in Western North Carolina.

The purpose of the session is to gain input from public and private entities about, obstacles and best practices that may allow for the restoration of Helene-damaged housing and the development of new, disaster-resistant housing to improve community housing stock.

Recovering communities should have a range of affordable housing options. Local developers have important experience that will help ensure that North Carolina communities are resilient and meet the housing needs of all populations. Local perspectives allow the federal government to develop meaningful action plans for recovery.

This session will take place 10-11:30 a.m. Monday, Dec. 9. Interested developers can attend this session in person, online or by phone.
